Dear friends,

We understand that this message may be more relevant to some of you than others, however we feel it is important to send this email out to all of you for the sake of clarity.

We recently made an announcement of Snatam Kaur's 2025 concert in Brussels, and in the announcement process, an honest mistake has been made of including an outdated bio of Snatam's which describes Yogi Bhajan as her spiritual teacher. Snatam does not, and has not considered Yogi Bhajan her teacher since his abuse came to light in 2020, and stands firmly beside the survivors of this abuse.

We understand the confusion and pain our previous email and the use of old biographical information has caused, and we take full responsibility for this mistake. Please note that neither Snatam nor her team approved the use of the old bio and we will ensure this mistake is not made again.

We are striving to spread peace, harmony, joy and connection through the concerts we are holding, and look forward to welcoming Snatam back to Belgium in 2025.

Thank you for your patience and understanding.

Please find below a message from Snatam and her current bio.

Message from Snatam

Given the shocking revelations of 2020 around the abusive behavior of Yogi Bhjan, the realization that many of the victims were my own peers, and the massive attempt at control and manipulation for his own personal gain not only of my life but of so many, I can no longer consider him to be my spiritual teacher. I am blessed to be able to access teachings from the Sikh faith and other established spiritual traditions that inform my chanting, meditation and yoga practice.

Correct bio

Snatam Kaur is a world-renowned, Grammy-nominated devotional singer, touring musician, teacher, and author known for her stirring, luminous vocal quality and insightful teaching. She just released her new album Heartflow.

Inspiring and light-filled, Heartflow radiates the profound and deeply personal space Snatam tunes into with mantra meditation and through celebration and dance. Together, this selection of mantras and songs from Snatam's personal experiences, practices, and teachings convey the brilliance of coming from a Heartflow space in life.

The album's debut coincides with the launch of Snatam's Heartflow Tour through Europe and will be followed by a fall tour of North America and Latin America. Beginning with quieting the mind and tuning in, Heartflow concerts will feature chants and songs Snatam has found empower her entry into this Heartflow space —a place where her soul most deeply resonates — and share it with others who choose to activate the energy of the heart and live from this vibrant, beautiful place of awareness.

Performing with Snatam on the Heartflow album and tour are her band members, producer Ram Dass (piano, clarinet, and vocals), Grecco Buratto (guitar and vocals), and Sukhmani Rayat (percussion and vocals).

Explore classes with Snatam, her husband Sopurkh, and other teachers at Kirtan and Kundalini, their online sacred music and yoga school, dedicated to supporting the spiritual journey of as many practitioners as possible.

About Snatam Kaur

Born in Trinidad, Colorado, Snatam was raised in the Sikh and Kundalini yoga tradition in a household and community rich with traditional Sikh music and chanting. Her mother, Prabhu Nam Kaur, is a Gurbani Kirtan singer, and growing up, Snatam learned how chanting, singing, and practicing Kundalini Yoga could be a deep source of strength. By the time she was in high school, she had adopted the practices—especially chanting—something she considered a huge blessing. Snatam lived her formative years in Sacramento and the Bay Area, often traveling with her family to India where she studied with Sikh musicians.

She currently resides in New Hampshire with her husband, Sopurkh Singh, and their daughter, Jap Preet Kaur, who recently sang with Snatam and her grandmother, Prabhu Nam Kaur, on Soul Bird, a transcendent devotional album featuring the three generations performing together.

Snatam's professional music career began in the late '90s, performing at an all-night Kirtan festival in Lake Wales, Florida, with a band called The Peace Family, with who she recorded her first album in 1999. After initially performing and recording in English, she felt drawn to traditional Sikh chanting and music and recorded Prem, her first solo album, in 2001.

Not long into touring, Snatam was inspired to teach. She had met people along the way who, having a powerful feel-good experience, wanted more. Snatam felt that if she could teach them to chant and develop a spiritual practice, they could continue on their own. She began teaching workshops along with her concerts, which culminated in the 2016 release of her book Original Light. The book's goal was to help people create meaningful daily spiritual practices modeled on the Aquarian Sadhana, the spiritual practice Snatam grew up with, including recitation, yoga, and chanting.
